1. Representations have been made that there exists a definite need for a much wider distribution of these bibliographies than is possible under the present classification. Responsible interested agencies of the Armed Forces should have knowledge of the existence and be able to secure pertinent catalogued studies for use in a more efficient prosecution of the war. The bibliographies under consideration are concerned with studies related to geographical areas which, in the pursuance of the war, quite obviously would be studied by our forces. It is reasonable to assume that the enemy expects such studies to be made. The bibliographies are in effect short titles which, while disclosing location, do not reveal content except by subject. It is therefore the opinion of Joint Security Control that security of the document is secondary to the need expressed for wider dissemination and it is recommended that the request to classify subject bibliographies "confidential" be approved. This action is not to be considered as blanket authority to classify other bibliographies as "confidential."

2. For comment or concurrence.
